

PERSEVERANCE

- The Perseverance rover is looking for signs of ancient life on Mars, collecting rock and soil samples that might return to Earth one day.
- It landed on Mars in Jezero Crater, where a river delta flowed into an ancient lake a very long time ago.
- It weighs approximately 2,260 pounds.
- It has 23 cameras to navigate, study and photograph the Red Planet.

Want to explore Mars for yourself? Check out our Explore Mars game at: spaceplace.nasa.gov/explore-mars